PLANNING OF PRODUCT REALISATION

Ref: - P 7-1

Our company has always looked on planning as a necessity and the processes within the company are constantly under review to ensure that we have, within our ability, the necessary processes to achieve the required outcome. The output from this process is a job card with all of the relevant information to achieve the results required.

Within the planning process we address the customers requirements both for the product and for any additional processes.

This procedure includes any additional documentation required, including that which the customer may supply, and the availability of the resources required in fulfilling the contract.

The planning process includes the assessment for any additional verification or other inspection or test activity other than that which is normally carried out. Also addressed are the records required as objective evidence that the customer's requirements have been met.
